

Biography

Sheri Chacon PA-C

Sheri was first introduced to the art and science of medicine in 1988 when she became a hospital corpsman in the United States Naval Reserve. Her love of taking care of people has grown from there.

She was activated in support of Desert Storm and spent time on Active Duty at Oakland Naval Hospital. She trained as a surgical scrub technician in the Navy and discovered her passion for the operating room. When she completed her Physician Assistant training at the Western University of Health Science in Chico, California, her first clinical practice was in general orthopedic and spine surgery. After that, she joined the California Army National Guard. She has broadened her expertise over the past 22 years by practicing primary care, internal medicine, physical medicine and rehabilitation, and pain management. She is especially adept at joint injections and trigger point injections.

She also has a deep passion for assisting patients with weight loss.

Sheri balances her busy medical practice with an entire rich home life with her family. She has taken up bowling; she is a movie nerd and loves to read.

Specialty

Primary Care and Internal Medicine.

Degrees

Physician Assistant

Areas of Expertise

- Joint Injections
- Trigger Point Injections
- Pain Management
- Weight Loss
- Rehabilitation

Office

13555 W. McDowell Rd. #205 Goodyear, Arizona.

University

Western University of Health Science in Chico, California